MORE AND FASTER MERCHANT SHIPS

MR. ROOSEVELT'S NEW SAFETY MEASURE

PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT predicted to-day that "more and faster ships" would be built in the United States to "carry through the open waters of the seven seas implements of war which will help destroy the menace to free peoples everywhere."

The statement was made in a letter to Rear-Admiral Land, Chairman of the United States Maritime Commission.

"I am glad," he said, "of the opportunity to send a maritime message to the American people. To-day, as never before in our history, our merchant marine is vital to our national welfare.

"I do not mean vital merely in the conventional sense that it makes an important contribution, but in the stronger sense that it is a crucially decisive factor in our struggle for existence as a free people.

"If we are going to keep away from our shores forces that have convulsed the old world, and now menace the new, the job will be done in large measure by the ships and sailors of the merchant marine and by the working men who build the ships and supply them.

"If they fail the whole effort fails.

"All earnest, hard-working Americans, who spend the best part of their lives providing for the security and happiness of those they love, know that that precious security and happiness depend exactly on the success of that effort.

"I know that the effort will not fail—that more and faster ships will be built and manned by American seamen, and that they will carry through the open waters of the seven seas implements of war which will help destroy the menace to free peoples everywhere."

MR. STIMSON ON NEUTRALITY ACT

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Mr. Stimson, U.S. Secretary of State for War, described the neutrality law to-day as "a violation of our most sacred and important tradition in foreign policy—the freedom of the seas." The law, he said, was sure to bring the United States into trouble, because it was against their inherent rights. The "repeal of the law," he declared, "will have to be carefully considered when we attempt to deliver the goods to Britain."

U.S. PRESIDENT'S NEXT TALK

DIPLOMATS TO BE PRESENT

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

President Roosevelt to-day began work on the "fireside" radio talk which he is to give on May 27, and which may contain a momentous pronouncement on international affairs.

The thirty-minute talk will be delivered from the White House in the presence of diplomatic representatives of other American Republics, and it is reliably stated will centre on the world situation.

GRIM BATTLE FOR CRETE

NO RETREAT FOR EITHER SIDE

Attempted Landings Frustrated at Sea

BOTH SIDES CLAIM WARSHIPS SUNK

DESCRIBING the battlefront in Crete to the House of Commons last night, Mr. Churchill said that the present was an indeterminate moment in a battle in which neither side has any means of retreat.

He told an expectant House of the arrivals of German air-borne troops and how they are being increased daily, and then described a surprise attack by the Navy on Wednesday night on a German convoy, in which two transports and a number of caiques (Greek vessels), with an escorting destroyer, were sunk.

The Premier also told how at daybreak on Thursday, when a convoy of thirty vessels was sighted, British destroyers and light naval forces tried to engage them. The Germans turned towards the islands of the Archipelago, with the British in pursuit. The battle raged throughout the day, with the German Air Force trying to drive the British ships off.

Mr. Churchill had no definite information for the House as to the results, but said that he felt they could hardly be otherwise than satisfactory, in view of the British naval strength in the Mediterranean.

The House asked the Premier to convey its admiration of and confidence in the troops in Crete.

INTENSE FIGHTING

On the motion for the adjournment of the House, Mr. Churchill, referring to the battle for Crete, said that he could only give a very provisional account.

"Fighting is continuing with intensity," he said, "and although the situation is in hand the Germans have gained some local successes at heavy cost. They are using large numbers of air-borne parachute troops, and these are being increased daily.

"The position at Heraclion is that our troops still hold the aerodrome, although the Germans are now in what is called "occupation of the town," which probably means that they are ensconced in certain buildings in that town. In the Retimo district there is no report of any particular fighting, although the attempt by the enemy to attack the area of the aerodrome early yesterday morning was successfully held.

MORE LANDINGS

"In the Canea-Suda Bay sector heavy enemy air attacks in the early morning yesterday were followed during the course of the day by further parachute landings south-west of Canea, which were heavily engaged by our artillery and machine-guns.

"At Maleme Aerodrome, ten miles south-west of Canea, it appears that the enemy are now in occupation of the aerodrome and of the areas to the west of it, but the aerodrome is still under our fire. Elsewhere in this sector the coastal line remains in our hands. The fighting is going on, deepening in intensity and will certainly continue for some time.

"Last night the enemy began to try sea-borne landings. A convoy making for Crete was intercepted by our naval forces. Two transports and a number of caiques, which probably contained troops intended for landing operations were sunk, and an enemy destroyer which was escorting the convoy was also sunk, but during the course of to-day very much larger attempts have been made by the enemy to carry an army into Crete, and a convoy of thirty vessels was discerned this morning by our forces, and was presumably attacked by them.

"My information is not complete on that point. The convoy turned away towards the islands of the Archipelago, and was being attacked by our destroyers and light forces. I have not received any further information as to what happened. There has been fighting all during the day. The enemy Air Force is attacking our ships, and we are attacking the convoy. I am sorry to say I have got no definite information as to the results, but I feel they can hardly be other than satisfactory in view of the naval forces of which we dispose in the Mediterranean."

STRANGE AND GRIM

Mr. Bevan (Lab., Ebbw Vale) asked the Prime Minister to take whatever available means he had to send from the House its admiration of, and confidence in, the troops in Crete.

Mr. Churchill—I certainly will. It is a most strange and grim battle that is being fought. Our side has no air support because they have no aerodromes—not because they have no aeroplanes.

"The other side has little or none of artillery or tanks. Neither side has any means of retreat. It is a desperate, grim battle, and I will certainly send the good wishes of the House—and the encouragement and approval of the House—to these men in what is undoubtedly a most important battle, which will affect the whole course of the campaign in the Mediterranean."

HOUSE GRATIFIED

Mr. Hore-Belisha (Nat., Devonport) said that, as he asked for this statement, he would like to say how greatly the House appreciated Mr. Churchill's courtesy in making these periodical statements, and how gratified they were at the parts which were satisfactory, and how much they wished to assure him of their encouragement in the struggle.

Mr. Benson (Lab., Chesterfield) asked the Prime Minister whether, as he had said the other side had no tanks, it was to be implied that the Allies had tanks.

Mr. Churchill—I certainly had not thought of going into those details.

CAIRO REPORT

The Cairo communiqué issued yesterday afternoon states, in regard to operations in Crete:—"Yesterday (Wednesday) further waves of German parachutists and air-borne troops continued to land at various points on the island throughout the day. British and New Zealand forces, assisted by Greeks and Cretans, all rendered a magnificent account of themselves. Fighting with splendid courage and dash, our Empire forces, with their gallant allies, delivered three successful counter-attacks."

BIG GERMAN CLAIM

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

BERLIN, Thursday.

The German High Command issued this special communiqué to-night:—"The German Air Force scored particular successes to-day against the British Navy in the Eastern Mediterranean. Four British cruisers and some destroyers were sunk by direct hits, and a battleship and two other destroyers were severely damaged."

Previous to this announcement the official German News Agency stated that a British cruiser was sunk by German bombers in the Eastern Mediterranean yesterday.

It added that altogether "three units of the British Navy were hard hit" in the attack.

ITALIAN CLAIM

ROME, Thursday.

The Italians claim to have sunk a British cruiser by air attack yesterday morning in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Six other ships, it is stated, were with the cruiser. She was hit "fair and square" by two heavy bombs. Flames and black smoke followed, and she began to list. Lifeboats were seen to be lowered and the other ships crowded round to pick up survivors.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK

The British Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that H.M.S. Queenworth, an auxiliary vessel of the Royal Navy (Lieut.-Comdr. R. W. Wainewright, R.N.), has been sunk. The next-of-kin of casualties have been informed.

5,000 PRISONERS IN ABYSSINIA

BRITISH DESTROY SOLLUM POST

ANOTHER five thousand Italians have fallen into British hands in the rapid advance and mopping-up operations in the Gonda area, where two Italian divisions are now trapped in the battle of the lakes, according to the British communiqué.

So precipitate has been the Italian flight in one district that a hundred dead were left on a battlefield. To the south, the British advance guards overwhelmed a complete rearguard, consisting of a brigade headquarters and three Colonial battalions.

Meanwhile the R.A.F., assisted by da Gaullists, is striking hard and repeatedly at convoys, attacking aerodromes and machine-gunning camps or troops in Libya, Greece and Abyssinia.

The Cairo communiqué says that at Tobruk there is nothing of importance to report. In the Sollum area during the night of May 20th-21st advance elements of British mechanised troops destroyed an enemy post on Sollum Hill, knocking out three German tanks. British patrols in this area, it says, are continuing their vigorous aggressive activities.

The R.A.F. Middle East communiqué says that in Libya fighter aircraft successfully attacked motor transport convoys near the Capuzzo area on Wednesday. Many lorries were destroyed and others damaged. Other aircraft bombed and machine-gunned a camp in the same area. During the previous night targets near Barce were bombed.

During the night of May 20th-21st British bombers made a heavy and successful attack on German occupied aerodromes in Greece. At Eleusis, bombs were seen to burst among aircraft on the ground and a fire was started. At Menidi the results were not observed. At Malaoi several large explosions were observed, whilst at Topolia two fires were started.

Malta was bombed on Wednesday and slight damage caused to service property.

From all operations in Egypt, Greece, Iraq, Syria and Abyssinia six British aircraft are missing.

A communiqué from Nairobi records that one British N.C.O. captured an Italian medium-sized tank single-handed by jumping aboard the tank and opening the turret-cover and killing the crew with his revolver.

BRITISH RAID ON HELIGOLAND

The British Air Ministry last night stated that a few single raiders flew over Britain during the day. Bombs dropped on a village in Sussex damaged cottages and caused a small number of casualties. One raider was shot down by British fighters yesterday morning.

Air Ministry reports state that the Island of Heligoland evidently was taken by surprise when Royal Air Force bombers attacked it in daylight on Wednesday afternoon. The aircraft swept over the island at a height of between forty and fifty feet, through a continuous hail of anti-aircraft fire. One bomb made a direct hit on a battery of guns.

Docks to the south of the island, and also the centre of the town, were bombed, and after the attack the target was a swirl of dust and smoke, lit here and there by flames. The damage done eight days ago was observed.

Later the same afternoon a strong force of bombers, escorted by large formations of Spitfires and Hurricanes, attacked the power station and oil refinery at Gosnay, three miles from Bethune and some 50 miles inside occupied France. Direct hits were scored on both targets.

"Five enemy fighters were shot down, one by a bomber," it is added, "and one Royal Air Force bomber and six fighters are missing.

"One bomber is missing from the Heligoland raid."

BRITAIN'S GROWING WAR BILL

An indication of Britain's vast and growing wartime expenditure is given in a White Paper, issued last night, analysing credit votes of £3,500,000,000 for the financial year 1941-42. This figure excludes the value of supplies from the United States under the Lease and Lend Act and payments under orders placed in America before the Act.

Accounting for the greater part of the vote are the cost of the Navy, Army and Air Services, the Ministry of Aircraft Production and the Ministry of Supply, whose huge "bite" totals £2,700,000,000.

There is a sum of £439,000,000 for "services which in the public interest cannot be specified."

SCOTS DUKE HAD NEVER MET RUDOLF HESS

WHEN the Duke of Hamilton was taken to see Rudolf Hess after he had landed in Scotland it was the first time the Duke had met the Deputy Fuehrer with whom he has never been in correspondence, said Sir Archibald Sinclair in the House of Commons yesterday. Herr Hess he said, first revealed his true identity when he was in hospital, and said that he had seen the Duke when he was at the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936.

"The Duke did not recognise the prisoner," said the Air Minister, "and had never met the Deputy Fuehrer. He had, however visited Germany for the Olympic Games in 1936, and during that time had attended more than one large public function at which German Ministers were present. It is, therefore, quite possible that the Deputy Fuehrer may have seen him on one such occasion.

"As soon as the interview was over, Wing Commander the Duke of Hamilton flew to England and gave a full report of what had passed to the Prime Minister, who sent for him.

"Contrary to reports which have appeared in some of the newspapers, the Duke has never been in correspondence with the Deputy Fuehrer. None of the Duke's three brothers who are, like himself, serving in the Royal Air Force, has either met Hess or had correspondence with him. It will be seen that the conduct of the Duke of Hamilton has been in every respect honourable and proper."

Answering further question, Sir Archibald said that every effort was made to intercept Herr Hess's 'plane, and at the time he baled out one British Defiant night fighter was hot on the trail. He could not say whether Herr Hess wrote a letter to the Duke, but no letter from him had reached the Duke or any responsible authority.

IRAQI BOMBS ON TRANSJORDAN

THE German radio claimed last night that Raschid Ali's air force "successfully bombed British positions" at Amman, capital of Transjordan, yesterday, says the Press Association.

The raid was described as the "first operation by Iraqi forces outside their own territory," thus contradicting earlier German reports that Iraqi troops had penetrated into Palestine.

British troops are twenty miles from Baghdad, the capture of which is imminent, according to British military circles in Ankara, quoted by the the National Broadcasting Company's correspondent there last night.

The Cairo communiqué last night said that operations in the neighbourhood of Fallujah are progressing. In the Basrah area the situation remains calm.

The R.A.F. communiqué said that the cantonment at Habbaniyah was machine-gunned by German aircraft, slight damage being caused.

German wireless reported yesterday that the son of the Emir Abdullah of Transjordania had created a volunteer corps which would soon be ready to help Rashid Ali, the Iraqi leader.

De Gaulle circles in Cairo decline to comment on an Ankara Radio report that de Gaulle forces have crossed into Syria. Military circles do not confirm the report.

Reports that de Gaulle forces had entered Syria and been joined by a French unit in Syria were denied in a communiqué in Beirut yesterday, says the German Radio.

General Bergeret, French Secretary of State for Air, who is in Syria, has started his preparations to "defend French possessions in the Near East against air attack," the German radio said last night.

Turkey is taking "precautions" in regard to Syria and Iraq. This was indicated yesterday by the authoritative newspaper, Yeni Sabah, which explains: "Our relations are normal with Germany, therefore she has no right to object to such moves."

HITLER AT HIS MOUNTAIN HOME

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

BERLIN, Thursday.

Hitler is at his mountain retreat above Berchtesgaden, in Bavaria. He received Alfieri, the Italian Ambassador in Berlin, there to-day, the second anniversary of the signature of the Italo-German Treaty of Friendship.

Ribbentrop and the German Press Chief, Dietrich, were also present.

The Italian Ambassador and his suite were later entertained by Ribbentrop at his country house at Fuschl.

BRITAIN WARNS FRANCE

'NEW AND SINISTER' COLLABORATION

BRITAIN'S stern warning to the French Government was delivered in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Eden, Foreign Secretary, when he spoke of the "new and sinister" collaboration with the Germans, and announced amid cheers:

"We shall, naturally, hold ourselves free to attack the enemy wherever he may be found, and in so doing we shall no longer feel bound to draw any distinction between occupied and unoccupied territory in the execution of our military plans.

There were cries of "Shame" when Mr. Eden spoke of Marshal Pétain's broadcast to the French people appealing for unquestioning acceptance of the results of Admiral Darlan's negotiations with the Germans.

"These negotiations," said Mr. Eden, "have been described in Vichy as opening up a new phase in Franco-German collaboration, of which, no doubt, the action of the Vichy Government in allowing Syrian aerodromes to be used by German aircraft is an example."

President Roosevelt has stated clearly his view of this new and sinister development in Vichy policy, and the U.S. Government have already taken certain preventive action in regard to French shipping in United States ports.

"In the confused and uneasy explanation which has been put out in Vichy it has been suggested that the policy of collaboration between the Vichy Government and Germany is to be political and economic only, and it has been stated that the Vichy Government have no intention of attacking Great Britain, and still less the United States.

"This explanation cannot conceal that the Vichy Government have embarked upon a course which must place the resources and territory of France and her empire increasingly at the disposal of a Power which is the enemy, not only of France's former ally, but of France herself. (Cheers.)

"The French people will, the British Government are sure, regard this policy as incompatible with the honour of France. Nor will they believe that the future of France and her Empire will be better served by surrendering them to Hitler's so-called new order than by resolutely maintaining and defending their independence until such a time as the victorious Allies shall complete their liberation.

"The British Government must, however, take account of the acts of the Vichy Government. (Cheers.)

FREEDOM OF ATTACK

"If the Vichy Government, in pursuance of their declared policy of collaboration with the enemy, take action or permit action detrimental to our conduct of the war, or designed to assist the enemy's war effort, we shall, naturally, hold ourselves free to attack the enemy wherever he may be found and in so doing we shall no longer feel bound to draw any distinction between occupied and unoccupied territory in the execution of our military plans.

"On August 7 last the Government assured General de Gaulle that it was their determination when victory was won to secure the full restoration of the independence and greatness of France.

"It rests with the French people to determine whether they will play their part in assisting those who have continued to fight for the liberation of France, or whether France will henceforward serve in the ranks of Germany's satellites."

Asked by Mr. P. J. Noel-Baker (Labour) whether they would make it plain to the French people that the Vichy Government did not represent them, Mr. Eden replied: "Yes, the object of my statement is to make quite plain to the French people the views of the Government and their understanding of the position in which the Vichy Government has placed them."

When members questioned him about the blockade, and anticipating any action by Vichy in handing over colonies to the Germans, Mr. Eden said that these were questions of military action, into which he could not enter.

PATROLS INTERCEPT FRENCH TANKER

"Swift action has followed Mr. Eden's statement in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the French Government," writes the Press Association Lobby Correspondent.

"I learn authoritatively that British naval patrols in the Atlantic have intercepted and taken charge of a French oil tanker, named Scheherez, which was carrying a cargo of oil from one of the United States ports to Casablanca, in North Africa.

"The British Government a short time ago gave a navicert to this tanker, but developments in the last few days in Syria and elsewhere have made a big impression on opinion in America, as well as in England, and the vessel was picked up with the full consent of the United States."

BIG F... IN CATTLE EXPORTS

The effects of the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease was again demonstrated in the trade returns for April, which have just been published. The value of the live animals exported during the month was £40,503, as compared with £1,046,983 in the corresponding month last year. There was however, a substantial increase in the exports classed as food, drink and tobacco. The figures for these in April of this year were £1,826 207 as against £1,161,180 in April last year.

Imports were down by more than half as compared with April of last year. The total was £2,343,880 as against £5,066,126. The following were the figures for the various classes in April 1941; those for April, 1940, are given in brackets:—Live animals, £7,220 (£26,491); food, drink and tobacco, £257,567 (£1,705 810); other raw materials and manufactured goods, £2,030,171 (£3,246 509); parcel post, £48,922 (£87,316).

The imports for the month reached the lowest figure for any month in the last year. The exports however, at £2,157,216 were slightly higher than in February and March. The adverse balance on the month's trading was £186,664.

INCREASED PETROL PRICES

An Order made by the Minister for Supplies fixes the maximum prices for motor spirit as from to-day at 2s. 9d. in Dublin area and 2s. 10d. elsewhere.

Cardinal Opposes Conscription

His Protest Against Partition

EXPRESSIONS of opinion on Conscription—the question of the moment in the North—reveal diversities of view in party groups.

The Government and the Ulster Unionist Party are said to favour it, with some exceptions.

Nationalists, as a whole, are united in their opposition, but among the Labour Party a few leading men, such as Alderman Midgley, differ from the majority and speak in favour of Conscription.

Cardinal MacRory, on behalf of the Church whose head he is in Ireland, has made clear, in the statement which we print to-day, his Church's opposition.

Cardinal MacRory last evening issued the following statement from Ard Ceoli, Armagh:—

"In view of the renewed threat of Conscription for the six counties, I have been pressed from various quarters since my return home last night to say something on the subject. Ordinarily, in such a crisis, I would call a meeting of the Bishops concerned before saying anything. As the matter is stated to be urgent, and some Bishops are absent from home administering Confirmation, there is no time necessary—fortunately, however, it is not necessary—for all the Bishops concerned, with one exception, expressed their views on the subject only two years ago. The exception is the Bishop of Derry, the Most Rev. Dr. Farren, who was appointed Bishop only later on. I have his authority for saying that he warmly approves the statement then issued. The statement is as follows:—

"'In view of the anxiety that exists at present among our people, on account of the rumours of Conscription, we deem it a solemn duty to make known our considered judgment on the situation that confronts us in the six counties. We are convinced that any attempt to impose Conscription here would be disastrous. Our people have been already subject to the gravest injustice in being cut off from one of the oldest nations in Europe, and in being deprived of their fundamental rights as citizens in their own land. In such circumstances, to compel them to fight for their oppressor would be likely to rouse them to indignation and resistance. It would be regarded by Irishmen, not only in the six counties, but in Eire and throughout the world, wherever they are found, as an outrage on national feeling and aggression upon our national rights.'

"If those who think they have benefited by partition desire to show their gratitude, it should not be necessary to impose upon them compulsory military service. In actual fact, the British Government stands to lose rather than to gain by such an attempt."

The Cardinal went on: "Nothing that happened since these words were written lessens their force in the slightest degree. That the people of all creeds and classes in Belfast have recently suffered heavily at the hands of the Germans, however regrettable it may be, does not touch the essence of the question, which is that an ancient land, made one by God, was partitioned by a foreign Power against the vehement protest of its people, and with conscription it would now seek to compel those who still writhe under this grievous wrong to fight on the side of its perpetrators.

✠ "J. CARDINAL MACRORY."

SOME PARTY VIEWS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

It is generally understood that, with some exceptions, the Northern Government and the Ulster Unionist Party are in favour of conscription. The Nationalists are distinctly, and the Labour Party largely, opposed to Conscription. Certain Labour and Labour Unionist elements, however, are in favour of it.

Alderman Harry Midgley (Belfast), a leading Labour Unionist and Chairman of the Northern Ireland Labour Party, recently declared in favour of conscription for the North, but Mr. J. Beattie, M.P., Leader of the Labour group in the Northern Parliament, to-day warned Mr. Churchill that if he forced conscription on Northern Ireland his action would prove to be one of the biggest blunders in the history of Ireland or England.

The Rev. Professor Robert Corkey, M.P. for Queen's University, in the Northern Parliament to-day stated:—"I feel that without conscription the people of Northern Ireland and the Government of Northern Ireland will not be able to do all they might on behalf of victory."

Alderman T. Bailie (Bangor), the newly-elected M.P. for North Down, said:—"Personally, I cannot see that Ulster, if she is to remain true to her loyalist principles, can consistently adopt any other attitude than one favourable to the application of conscription."

A statement by Mr. Denis Ireland, President, Ulster Union Club, declares: "If the suggestion of conscription for Northern Ireland arises from the British need for more man-power, then the proposal to defend Britain by sowing discord in Ireland seems absolutely fantastic. Britain has already as many troops in Northern Ireland as she could ever hope to take out of it, even by force of bayonets. At the eleventh hour we, as an association of Ulster Protestants, look to the Protestant Churches in Ireland for a lead towards the spiritual re-integration of our native land.

Senator Thomas McLaughlin, J.P., Armagh, to-day described the conscription proposal as "the last stroke," and he alleged discrimination against the minority.

Northern Ireland Nationalists will meet in Belfast to-day to discuss the question of the extension of conscription to the province. It was stated yesterday that an important announcement would be made after the conference.

THE "IRISH TIMES"

In consequence of the Government's orders regarding consumption of newsprint, the "Irish Times" is reduced to four pages to-day. This step, for which we apologise to our readers, has been taken in order to enable us to maintain a ten-page paper on Saturdays. To-morrow's issue will contain all the usual features, which have made Saturday's "Irish Times" unique in Irish journalism.

MORE FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE

Nine further outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease in Tipperary and one in County Dublin were confirmed yesterday. Seven of the Tipperary cases occurred in the Ballingarry area, one at Modeshill and one at Kilcooly. The County Dublin case was at Clondalkin.

TWENTY-EIGHT ARRESTS IN BRICKWORKS

DUBLIN MEN BEFORE SPECIAL COURT

HOW twenty-eight men were captured by detectives at Crumlin Brickworks, Dublin, on the night of May 2nd, was described to the Special Criminal Court yesterday, when nineteen of them were tried on charges of membership of an unlawful organisation. Seventeen also were charged with refusing to give an account of their movements during a specified period.

Detectives testified that they surrounded the brickworks at Crumlin on the night of May 2nd, and knocked at the door of one of the buildings and called on the men who were inside to come out. There was no reply, but a short time afterwards a few men came out of a side door and were taken into custody. Later a voice from inside called for the officer in charge of the detectives and said that they would surrender "if there was no plugging." The sergeant then told them that there would be no shooting and that they should come out one at a time with their hands up. The men followed his instructions and were arrested. A military cordon was placed round the buildings, and on the following morning, a number of documents, some of which had been torn up, were found.

THE SENTENCES

The two men who were charged only with membership of an illegal organisation—Patrick Bourke, 12 Suir road, Inchicore, and Patrick Brown, 25 Ballsbridge terrace, Ballsbridge — were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment and two years' imprisonment respectively.

Thirteen men were convicted on both charges, Jasper Hornibrook, 14 Clanbrassil street, Dublin, and Anthony Ruane, address unknown, were sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment each. The other eleven, who were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment each, were:—Christopher Byrne, 32 Smithfield, Dublin; O'Rahilly Sealy, 54 Sperrin road, Drimnagh; James Lennox, Whitehall cottage, Rathfarnham; Charles Gorman, Fifth Lock, Inchicore; John O'Neill, 431 Griffith avenue, Dublin; William Dowling, 4 Reginald street, Dublin; John Dowling, 8 Derry road, Crumlin; John Murphy, 5 St. Kevin's cottages, Dublin, Frederick Bolger, 10 Camden street, Dublin; Bernard Carroll, 178 Jane street, Dublin, and Patrick Leonard, Windy Arbour, Dundrum.

Four men pleaded guilty, two of them—Joseph Glasgow, 81 Mount Tallant avenue, Terenure, and Thomas Mullins, 108 Ben Maddigan road, Crumlin—were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, not to be served if they entered into bail to keep the peace for two years. The other two—Edward Regan, 22 Saul road, Crumlin, and Garrett Clarke, 86 Clonard road, Crumlin—were bound over for a similar period.

BOY RECEIVES £750 FOR INJURIES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

A settlement for £750 and costs, without admission of liability, was announced in an action of Patrick Heeney, aged 11 years, 17 Pearse Park, Drogheda, against Cement, Ltd., Westmoreland street, Dublin, for damages for injuries suffered on February 14 last year. It was stated that the boy was severely burned when he ran along a heap of sediment or waste—"highly corrosive and inherently dangerous, though harmless in appearance"—while playing on lands near the company's factory at Drogheda.

The company denied the allegations, and pleaded that the boy was a trespasser.

Mr. Roe, K.C.; Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. F. Lynch (instructed by Mr. Thomas J. Brannigan) appeared for the boy; and Mr. Costello, K.C.; Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. William Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. J. H. McLoughlin and Son) for Cement, Ltd.

Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. Budd (instructed by Messrs. John L. Scallan and Co.) appeared for Mr. Dinan; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C.; Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. Casey (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) for the company.

EXPORTING MOTOR LORRIES

In the Dublin District Court, before District Justice McCarthy, John Joseph Colgan, Upper Dorset street, and Edward Butler, Caledon road, East Wall, motor drivers, were fined £20 each or, in default, sentenced to three months' imprisonment, for assisting another person to export to Northern Ireland two motor lorries without a permit. It was stated that the lorries were allowed past the frontier to transfer vegetables into a lorry from Northern Ireland. The lorries did not return.

Detective-Sergeant Lynch said that he believed that the defendants had no financial interest in the matter, and had been paid wages only.

ACTION AGAINST PRISON GOVERNOR

SHOPKEEPER'S CASE FAILS

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MARTIN MAGUIRE.)

Reserved judgment was given on the legal issues raised in the action brought by James Gildea, shopkeeper, Coriara, Hill-street, Co. Roscommon, against James F. Hipwell, Governor of Sligo Prison at the time, claiming damages for alleged false imprisonment, which was denied, between December 4 and December 19 last.

Mr. Fitzgerald-Kenney, K.C., and Mr. O. Gogarty (instructed by Mr. C. E. Callan) appeared for Mr. Gildea; and Mr. E. Dixon, K.C., and Mr. Carroll O'Daly (instructed by Mr. G. Lynch) for Mr. Hipwell.

A jury had provisionally assessed damages at £13 16/5 to abide the result of legal arguments as to whether Gildea's imprisonment was unlawful or not.

An order made by the Bankruptcy Judge in Dublin committing Gildea for contempt had been directed to the Governor of Mountjoy Prison. Meanwhile Gildea had left the country, and on his return was arrested and detained in Sligo Prison until his release was directed by the High Court after a habeas corpus application.

It had been submitted on behalf of Gildea that the commital order directed to the Governor of Mountjoy was not a valid or legal authority for his detention in Sligo Prison.

Mr. Justice Maguire held that Mr. Hipwell had sufficient authority to take Gildea into custody. He held that no damages were recoverable, and that the claim failed. Judgment was given for Mr. Hipwell.

CLERGYMAN'S £10,000 WILL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

The jury found in favour of the will, of June 13 last, of the Rev. James Curry, Presbyterian minister, late of The Manse, Stranorlar, County Donegal, who died on July 8 last, leaving assets valued at £10,000 odd, and it was admitted to probate in solemn form.

The suit to establish the will had been brought, by the executor, Thomas D. H. McCrea, Elliott, solicitor, Melmount road, Strabane. The will had been opposed on the three usual grounds by James Kilpatrick, farmer, Castlebane, Ballybofey, nephew of the late Rev. James Curry. Both Mr. Elliott and Mr. Kilpatrick were allowed their costs out of the estate.

Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Robert Hogan (instructed by Mr. Thomas Elliott), appeared for Mr. T. D. H. McCrea Elliott. Mr. Lavery, K.C., Mr. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. Hugh O'Neill (instructed by Mr. Vincent P. McMullin), for Mr. Kilpatrick; and Mr. R. Mackey (instructed by Mr. Vincent P. McMullin) for Mr. James Auld, Magherintendry, Bushmills, a nephew of the late Rev. James Curry, who had been cited.

"PREPARE AGAINST U.S. ATTACK"

ORDER TO FRENCH MARTINIQUE

ASSOCIATED PRESS.
VICHY, Thursday.

Paris reports state that the defence forces in Martinique have received orders to prepare against an attack by the United States against the island.

Le Matin said that the main defence would be around the fortress holding the gold reserves of the Bank of France, and that this would be blown up by the defenders as a last resort.

The newspaper added that the defences of the island were being strengthened.

Advices which have reached Paris from Fort de France, Martinique, the headquarters of the French Naval Command in the Caribbean, state that the warships Bearn and Emil-Bertin would remain in the French Antilles.

The Paris Press reported that British warships were still maintaining their patrol off Martinique.

The American Choice

Unless he makes a second change in his plans, President Roosevelt will inform the world next Tuesday of what further steps he will take to assist Great Britain. In the meantime, his chief lieutenants permit no doubt about their personal attitude. Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State; Mr. Stimson, the Secretary for War, and Colonel Knox, the Secretary for the Navy, have delivered speeches within the past fortnight that come curiously from the leaders of a technically "neutral" nation. They have left the American people in no doubt that, if they had their way, they would afford all possible help, at whatever risk, to Great Britain, and that they would not pay any excessive attention to the qualifying phrase, "short of war." Two of these gentlemen, in addition to the President himself, have made their views even clearer within the past couple of days. Colonel Knox has described the United States Neutrality Act as "a terrible blunder," and Mr. Stimson condemns it as "a violation of our most sacred and important tradition in foreign policy, the freedom of the seas." Mr. Stimson adds, somewhat naïvely, that he is speaking as an individual rather than as Secretary for War; but even the private views of Cabinet Ministers, unlike what the sergeant said, are evidence. President Roosevelt has written a message to the chairman of the Maritime Commission, in which he speaks of the mercantile marine as a "crucially decisive factor in our struggle for existence as a free people," calls for the building of ships that will carry "the implements of war which will help to destroy the menace to free peoples everywhere," and expresses his belief that "more and faster ships" will be built. It is eminently improbable that these statesmen would have made such speeches, or written such letters, unless they intended them as "pointers." Clearly, the American people are being prepared for a statement of the highest importance; and any announcement that does not grant very substantial help, indeed, to the British will be, after all this preparation, a dangerous anti-climax. More significant still is the news that the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives has approved a request from the Navy Department for the appointment of an unspecified number of vice-admirals to command special forces on "missions of major importance." What can these missions be, except—at least—the convoying of munitions and other goods to any regions where the British may need them?

Nobody expects less; many people expect a great deal more. The betting in America, in Great Britain and here in Ireland, on a declaration of war by the United States—if not next week, within the next few months—is very strong. America, however, finds herself in a difficult position. She has the money, and she has the men; but the men are untrained, and the money has not yet taken the useful form of a sufficiency of ships, aeroplanes, and ammunition. She would be the ideal ally to Great Britain if, without a declaration of war either by or upon her, she could continue to furnish Britain with a great and unceasing flow of arms, together with the merchant ships necessary for their transport and the ships of war that would guarantee their safety. As matters stand to-day, she is leasing, lending and giving Great Britain an enormous supply of munitions—approximately half of her entire output—and she can lease, lend or give her a fair number of ships in which to carry them; but she is not at liberty to send the goods in American ships or to escort them with American ships of war. Actually, Britain's system of convoys has ensured the safe delivery of millions of tons of munitions, and the proportion of vessels lost has been surprisingly small; but Britain's position is such that she cannot afford any losses at all, and needs far more ships even than those which she possesses—both more merchant ships and more warships. Unless the Americans can provide these necessities, their help to Britain is almost sure to be insufficient. There is small doubt that they will supply the need; for their enthusiasm for the British cause is at a tremendous peak. The question is whether they will supply them and accept the chance of embroilment in the war, or will accompany the gift with a downright declaration of war on their own behalf. It is no easy choice—far less easy than the choice was in the last Great War; for Japan was then the ally of Great Britain, whereas she is now the friend of Britain's enemy, and almost inevitably will enter on Germany's side if the Americans make a decisive move on Britain's part. That is the risk which President Roosevelt and his advisers have been calculating during the past few months, and that, rather than the lingering power of the "isolationists," is the reason why they have hesitated. It is one thing to supply Britain; it is another thing to supply Britain and, simultaneously, to equip themselves for a war that will range across two oceans.

Wandervoegel

According to a Reuter message, three Indians—R. D. Shroff, N. J. Kharas and R. D. Ghandi—have arrived in Rangoon recently. These gentlemen, who are on a cycling tour of the world, have covered no less than 44,000 miles of their journey, and, relatively speaking, they are now not far from home. Eight years ago they left Bombay to embark on this round-the-world tour, and they hope to have completed their journey by this time next year. They have visited, in all, forty-five countries in Asia, Europe, North America, South America and Australasia, and during the eight years they have spent in the saddle, so to speak, they must have had many interesting experiences. Their tour is the sort of pilgrimage that most men in their early youth dream of making, but the dream gradually recedes under the exigencies of modern civilisation. The Indian travellers must have had plenty of money and freedom from all the responsibilities of civilised life; for, however keen a modern young man may be to take to the roads, his desire disappears or is stifled as soon as it becomes necessary for him to earn his bread and butter. The desire to wander is never completely stifled, however; the success of the Youth Hostels' Associations all over the world should afford ample proof that the young men and women of the cities still are anxious for the freedom of the open road. By the use of Youth Hostels those who earn only modest salaries are able to go on miniature "hitch-hikes," or bicycle tours, at home during the week-ends and the summer holidays, and those who are lucky enough to possess the necessary leisure and a small amount of capital can do the same thing abroad, or could before the outbreak of hostilities. Since the beginning of the war travelling of all kinds virtually has ceased, and it is most fortunate that Messrs. Shroff, Kharas and Ghandi have completed their tour in time; for every day further parts of the world are closed to strangers. The Indians have reached Burma safely, however, and, although they still have many miles to go, they are now, as it were, on the last lap. When they have completed their journey, they not only will have travelled completely around the world—in itself no mean accomplishment—but they will have travelled around it in what is possibly the most eventful period of its history since the beginning of time. When they have time to sit back and review that period of their lives as a whole, they will have a most interesting tale to tell.

"FAUST"
DUBLIN GRAND OPERA SOCIETY

Gounod's "Faust," presented by the Dublin Grand Opera Society, drew a packed audience to the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last night. The opera was quite enjoyable and, on the whole, well produced, but fell short of the high standard of the previous night, mainly because the principals were not too well balanced. James Johnston, the Belfast tenor, sang in glorious style, the voice always in excellent tune and well over the music. John Lynskey was the Mephistopheles, but, well though he sang, his fine baritone voice was not always bringing out the music.

Robert Irwin did quite well in the rôle of Valentine. His reading of "Even bravest hearts" was capital, and he was equally effective in the duel and dying scene.

Much interest was taken in the appearance of Helen Paxton, a young Waterford singer, in the part of Marguerite. She is a very clever little artiste, with a pleasant voice of good range, but on last night's showing she was altogether too light for grand opera and had not the vocal resources to work up the big dramatic climaxes required. Still, hers was a brave and commendable effort. Interesting was it to see Patricia Black in the rôle of Siebel, and it was extraordinary how she gave to the part a meaning and importance often missed.

The smaller parts of Wagner and Martha were capably filled by Thomas Peacock and Cathleen O'Byrne.

The "Cleopatra" Ballet was beautifully done under the direction of Sara Payne, with Jill Gregory, Christine du Boulay, Patricia Kinneen and Diarmuid in the principal rôles.

Captain J. M. Doyle, who conducted, handled the work with artistic appreciation of the finer points, and he had an excellent leader in Terry O'Connor.

To-night—"La Traviata," at 7.45.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Identity Discs

People who are in a position to know tell me that one of the most horrible necessities of the Belfast Blitzen was the subsequent identification of bodies.

It has led me to inquire whether something in the nature of identity discs ought not to be worn by everybody—man, woman and child. Citizens of Belfast who know what they are talking about assure me that the use of medals around the neck, or something of the sort, would have meant a substantial diminution of the difficulty and discomfort—I am using deliberately light words—attendant upon the identifying of victims.

There is no reason to suppose that this city of Dublin will find itself the victim of bombing; yet, in these days, everything is possible. In the circumstances, I venture to suggest that everybody who is in a position to do so shall provide himself, or herself, with either a metal or a plastic disc bearing his or her name and address.

It will not keep off the bombs, but it will save a very great deal of trouble and of mental anguish.

Paul Farrell

It pleased me to meet Paul Farrell at the stage-door of the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. Paul is one of those people whose long absence from Dublin I have always regretted, because he was far too good an actor to lose. His performance as Andrew Undershaft in "Major Barbara"—it must be eight or nine years ago now—has stuck in my memory as one of Dublin's outstanding specimens of acting.

I asked him what the chances were of a revival of "Major Barbara." He told me none, and for a rather surprising reason. It seems that "G.B.S." has disposed of the film rights; and, under the terms of the contract, the film people can forbid the professional performance of the play in any city where the film is due, or likely, to appear.

This business of acting rights, I learned from him, is highly complicated. Supposing that you want to produce a play in Dublin with an amateur company, you write, as a rule, to Messrs. French, of London, who seem to possess the acting rights of most plays; and I gather that they are generally pretty nice about it. But, if you are a professional, and propose to play with a professional company, the business is by no means so easy.

Getting a Play

First you must be put in touch with the people who hold the professional rights, and then the fun starts. One would think that in these days, when the chances of a touring company coming to Ireland are infinitesimal it would be easy enough to obtain permission for the performance of a London success—but no. Paul Farrell, by way of an example, wanted to stage Emlyn Williams's "The Light of Heart"; but the touring rights had been handed out, and there you are.

Anyhow, he seems to me to have made an excellent choice for the two shows he proposes to put on at the Gaiety next week and the week after. The first is "Tovarich," that extremely delightful comedy of an exiled Russian prince and princess—not to mention a Soviet commissar, which has been enormously successful in Paris, London and New York, and even more successful as a film.

MISS MOYA DEVLIN.

The film was one of the most delightful I had seen in years—and that was not merely because Claudette Colbert was playing in it.

Coincidence

On the subject of the princess's part, Paul told me of rather an interesting coincidence. He had obtained Moya Devlin to play the part, and it was only afterwards he discovered that she had played it already—in the Dublin French Society's production. I was not previously aware that Miss Devlin adds excellent French to her other accomplishments.

Paul has been back in Dublin since Christmas. He finds it somewhat quiet after London, having been in the Savage Club when that celebrated institution was bombed. During the last few weeks he has been learning the art of fencing in preparation for his part in "Tovarich." I trust that no mistakes will be made next week. Rapiers are ticklish things, even in the age of tommy-guns.

His second play will be "You Can't Take It With You," by Moss Hart and George Kaufman. Concerning it I cannot speak with knowledge, but the American papers have gone wild about it—and, anyhow, I can trust my friend Paul's taste.

If only I could be certain about his name, which at one time or another has been Paul O'Farrell, Paul Farrell, and Pól O Fearghaile.

Lieutenant Stafford

Mr. Victor Stafford, of Wexford, who has been appointed Competent Port Authority at Rosslare Harbour, with the rank of lieutenant, is the son of Mr. James J. Stafford, the founder of the Wexford Steamship Company, Ltd., and a former Mayor of Wexford.

Victor is a brother of Mr. James J. Stafford, who is one of the directors of the Irish Shipping Company, recently established by the Government. For some years he has been Chairman of Wexford Harbour Commissioners, and is probably the most junior occupant of such an office in Ireland, being barely out of his twenties when elected.

REFUGEES GO BACK TO THE NORTH
SIX DUBLIN-BORN BABIES

Six babies born in Dublin of Belfast mothers who came to Dublin after the first severe air raid on the North were among the party of 400 refugees which left Amiens Street Station yesterday by special train for Newry. The refugees, who had been cared for at the Irish Red Cross Society's headquarters, Mespil road, Dublin, for the past five weeks, were told by Red Cross officials that the Northern Government had requested their return, and had made arrangements to have them officially evacuated to Northern Ireland reception areas.

Some twelve representative refugees, to whom an Irish Times reporter spoke on the platform at Amiens Street, said that they did not want to return to the North, but that they "had to go." One woman, who was with her husband and young child, sobbed that she was afraid of further bombing; three youths still in their 'teens stated: "We do not want to be conscripted."

Red Cross officials told our reporter that the refugees were not compelled to return, but that when the Northern Government informed the Society that official arrangements were made for evacuation to safe areas, it was no longer possible to provide for them in Dublin.

The party—which included 80 mothers, 40 children in their 'teens, and about 30 or 40 men—were enthusiastic in their praise of the Irish Red Cross.

Special 'buses were provided to take the refugees to Amiens Street yesterday, where Mr. P. Foley, Traffic Superintendent, and other Great Northern Railway officials saw that everything went smoothly.

HOSPITAL SUPPLIES SHORTAGE
LORD GLENAVY URGES A CONFERENCE

A SUGGESTION that the responsible authorities should invite the representatives of the Dublin hospitals to come together to discuss questions concerning essential hospital supplies was made by Lord Glenavy, President, at the annual meeting of the Royal Victoria Eye and Ear Hospital yesterday evening.

Lord Glenavy, who was talking about the shortage of certain supplies, such as fuel, said that it was necessary to ensure that the hospitals would be able to carry on during what may be a not too easy autumn and winter. The most effective way of dealing with the problem would be for the conference, he suggested, to prepare a plan for the provision of those requirements which were essential to the hospitals. In some respects that hospital was short of materials.

The President of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce (Mr. Joseph Walker) said that Mr. Wylie's League of Goodwill might be able to do something in regard to the provision of turf for the hospitals; for it might be possible to use turf in such ways as the heating of boilers. In regard to the hospital's difficulties about getting fuel, he thought that if there was any way in which the business world could help they would be only too happy to give that help.

HOSPITAL BED BUREAU

Dr. R. J. Rowlette, President of the Royal College of Physicians, spoke of certain misunderstandings that had arisen following the establishment of the hospital bed b

The Ladies' Finals at Milltown

MISS SYBIL MOORE (Milltown), playing excellent golf and standing up resolutely to the grand recoveries of Mrs. J. B. Fletcher (Hermitage), won the final of the Leinster Senior Cup at Milltown yesterday by 4 and 2. In the morning, Miss Moore had an easy win from Miss Bermingham (Milltown), while Mrs. Fletcher surprised the gallery by a one hole victory from Mrs. John Beck, whose short game was not as sound as usual. Mrs. Fletcher was not on the best of terms with her long clubs, but her short game stood her in good stead, and a stymie on the last green finished off her opponent.

In the final, Miss Moore played by far the better golf, but Mrs. Fletcher held on to her grimly, her pitching and beautiful putting practically nullifying the all-round excellence of the Milltown lady. Miss Moore turned one up, went further ahead at the 11th became 3 up at the 15th, and won at the short sixteenth. Here long irons featured her fine exhibition.

The Junior Division was won by the County Louth player, Miss Jeanne Reinders, a native of Holland, who, for four successive years, was girls' Champion of Holland. Throughout the tournament she played very soundly, and yesterday was at her best in the semi-finals and final. Against Mrs. Hickey in the final she finished with fours at the thirteenth and fourteenth.
